

Radovan Radonic

Key Note: How POCUS changed our lives in acute human medicine settings | Radovan Radonic

To demonstrate how POCUS (Point-of-Care Ultrasound) gradually has become an integral part of clinical practice in emergency and intensive care medicine.

To present the principles of “visual medicine”, where clinical examination is complemented by data obtained through rapid basic ultrasound assessment, and to explore the capabilities of ultrasound in managing patients with trauma, shock, cardiac arrest, dyspnea, localization of infection sources, and other conditions.

To illustrate the basic principles and potential of ultrasound-guided interventions.